

About Vistra Indonesia

Indonesia

With approximately 263.9 million citizens, Indonesia is the fourth most populous country in the world. Following this fact, Indonesia is also well-known as the biggest archipelago and home of the largest Muslim population in the world. Not only that, its political stability and the focus on the development on infrastructures has also become another appealing point which makes Indonesia a popular destination for many investors.

Recent deregulation policies issued by the government are designed to invite more investors to Indonesia in the years to come. These factors offer countless business opportunities to the investors and make Indonesia highly favorable destination in the region.

As a developing country, Indonesia has shown a significant growth over the last decade. It has demonstrated a lot of improvement in its many sectors which can support investment activities within the country. By being a member of G20 and the driving force within the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), Indonesia also plays a growing role at the multilateral level.
